Printing Tips

The Tellermate Printer is a portable battery-operated device, it has a standby setting that puts the printer into sleep mode after 15 minutes of inactivity; this helps to save battery life. If the printer has been inactive for more than 15 minutes, or has been turned off, simply turn the printer back on. When turning the printer back on it may take between 10 and 30 seconds for the printer to reconnect to the Touch.

We recommend turning the printer on before you begin a count. On completion of your count the printer will reconnect to the Touch.

Look for the printer icon on the top of the screen. This indicates the printer is ready to print.
